Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.
ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan. 20, 1880.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but it does for all what it has done for me. It will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. 27d.

A LONG ISLAND HEATHEN

Who Knows More About Clams Than He Does About God.

New York Star.

In the recent discovery on Long Island of a community of full-blown heathen, the boasted civilization of the nineteenth century has received a severe shock. Right under the nose of the Foreign Missionary society paganism rears its horrid seven-story front.

A man from the Seventh ward, New York, was over on the island last week, and while leaning on a fish-cart interviewed one of the elderly and most respectable of the down-east heathen. When the old animated mummy faced to in his star-board tack to windward the Seventh ward man accosted him.

"Why don't you have some churches in this locality?"

"What's them?"

"Places to worship God in."

"God!" This with a profane accent, which suggested that the old duffer had heard the word before.

"Yes, God. Didn't you ever hear of him?"

"Well, I've heard the clam-diggers use the word when the tide was up, and some times the fishermen when they made a pool haul."

"What do you suppose God is?"

"Suppose! I don't suppose nothing at all about it, 'cause I don't know nothing at all about it. Do you?"

The Seventh ward man took his pipe out of his mouth and spat on the shingly shore.

"How old are you?"

"Going on seventy-two."

"Support a family?"

"Two on 'em—my own and my son-in-law's."

"Have you a Bible in the house?"

"Is it something like a gill-net?"

"No; the word of God written by the twelve apostles. Ever hear about Peter the Great?"

"Naw."

"One of the apostles; drove Adam and Eve out of the garden of Eden with a sword, and afterward caught a colored man named Pontius Pilate and slit his ears."

"What was his number?"

"Whose number?"

"The pilot's"

"Didn't have any number. What do you mean by that?"

"All the pilots on this coast have a number. Thought perhaps I might know him."

"Don't you have any schools here?"

"Had a kind of school here last chowder season, but the teacher was too willing."

"How so?"

"Oh, some of the blue-fishers asked him if he taught that the world was round or square, and he said seein' as how he was outen a job he'd teach her round or square—just as the school board wanted it taught. Said it was immaterial."

"Never have any Sunday school?"

"Naw."

"Dig clams on the Sabbath?"

"If the tide's down."

"What would you do if they should send some preachers over here?"

"Sell 'em some clams."

"What would you do if a missionary should come over from Brooklyn and build a nice big house to preach in?"

"Dry codfish in it."

"Did you ever hear of hell?"

"Only when Captain Skidmore talks of New Jersey."

"Where do you expect to go to when you die?"

"Go to pieces."

"Well, all I've got to say, old man, is that we propose to send over some civilizers and evangelical fertilizers from New York, and —"

"From New York?" murmured the old man.

"Yes, from New York."

The old man moved a few paces down the road. Then he paused and looked again at the Seventh ward man attentively.

"From New York?" This in a surprised and querulous tone.

"Why, yes. What is it you are driving at?"

"Ha! ha! Shepherd's fold. Starving widows and children, he, he! Boss Kelly, crime blood and corruption. Evangelical fertilizers! ho, ho! and all from New York! It makes me tired," and with several weird sepulchral chuckles the old heathen ambled up the white and clam-shelled road.

The City of Alexandria.

Previous to the political disturbances which caused a general exodus of Europeans from Egypt and led up to the bombardment and practical destruction of Alexandria, the city had a population of about 215,000 inhabitants, nearly 50,000 of them Europeans.

The city lies on the Mediterranean, near the mouth of the westernmost arm of the delta of the Nile, and occupies a peninsula, anciently the island of Pharos, and the neck of land connecting it with the mainland.

On each side of the isthmus is a good harbor, that on the west being mainly artificial. Its excellent position for trade made it the chief commercial city of Egypt and the great central station for passengers east and west, the steamers to and from India, the Levant, and Western ports all stopping there. It is connected with Mansoorah and the Suez Canal by railroad, and with Cairo by rail, canal, and river. In its newer portion Alexandria had the appearance of a European city. It was lighted with gas and supplied with water from the Nile. Besides its large export and import trade the city was the seat of large government and private manufactures run by steam. It had many fine residences. Among the prominent buildings were the palace of the Khedive at Ras-el-Tin, the large naval arsenal, the naval and military hospitals, the Custom House, Tribunal of Commerce, Italian College, and the various schools.

Alexandria was founded by Alexander the Great in 332 B. C. Under his successors, the Ptolemies, the city contained 300,000 free inhabitants and as many slaves. It became the center of learning, and schools of Grecian philosophy flourished there. Magnificent monuments were erected, among them the Pharos, the Museum, and the Temple of Serapis, and there were many gorgeous palaces and public buildings.

Julius Caesar besieged and took the city in 48 B. C. and eighteen years later Augustus made it an imperial city. It now began a new season of prosperity, continuing till the establishment of the seat of empire at Constantinople. The Catacombs, public baths, and Pompey's pillar, with the Roman city wall were erected during this period. In the year 215 the Roman Emperor Caracalla visited the city and ordered a general massacre, and under the rule of Gallienus a famine swept off half of the population. In 273 an insurrection resulted in the destruction of the great library of the museum. In 296 another revolt ended in a general slaughter, and in 365 an earthquake destroyed 50,000 persons. The Persians captured the city in 616, and yielded it to the Arabs in 641. It then contained 400 palaces, 100 theaters, 4,000 public baths, and 12,000 gardens.

From this time on it rapidly decayed, and its population and trade diminished. Cairo took its place as the chief city of Egypt. It finally sank so low that in 1777 its population was only 6,000.

The greatest devourers of novels in England are factory workers, who fly to them from the dull, ugly routine of their daily toil, and persons of leisure, of moderate means, who cannot afford society, travel, theaters, &c. Such persons abound in English watering places.

It looks now as if Congress would not adjourn while there is any surplus in the Treasury. It's a big job to waste over one hundred million dollars but they think they can worry through with it.

The New York Sun never uttered a more truthful sentence than the following: "A Republican nomination sanctifies the candidate, whatever may have been his former life, his conduct or his character."

Dr. D. F. COLLINS, of Minneapolis, Minn., brother of Jerome J. Collins, who lost his life with Lieutenant De Long, commander of the Jeannette, regarding his letter to representative Washburne, and his reasons for asking an investigation by congress, says that had Melville made energetic search at the beginning, or permitted Danenhower to do so, De Long and his party would have been saved. Collins also alleges that jealousy existed among the officers of the expedition, such as to make failure certain from the start.

A riot fight is going on in Milwaukee over the question of Sunday observance. The city has a large German element, and the theaters and beer gardens have been open on Sundays. A petition was recently circulated for closing the theaters, and it was signed by many merchants. This brought out the resentment of the Germans, and under the direction of the brewers, a system of boycotting has been employed against all tradesmen whose signatures appear on the petition. The brewers are the prime movers, because they know that a closing of the theaters would be followed by an attack on the beer gardens and saloons. Much bitterness has been engendered.

The question of the validity of the stipulation printed on telegraph blanks, to the effect that the company will not be responsible for mistakes unless the message be repeated, has been considered by the United States Court at Leavenworth, Kansas. "We can only say," remarked the Court, "that any rule or regulation of the company which seems to relieve it from performing its duty, belonging to the employment, with integrity, skill and diligence, contravenes public policy as well as the law, and under it the party at fault cannot seek refuge. If it becomes necessary for the company, in transmitting messages with integrity, skill, and diligence, to secure accuracy, to have said message repeated, then the law devolves upon them that duty."

A Conscientious Pensioner.

Cincinnati Commercial.

Pension Agent Wikoff is in receipt of the following letter from a soldier asking to be dropped from the pension rolls, he having recovered from his disability. It is believed that the request is the first of the kind on record, and reads as follows:

MANCHESTER, O., July 19, 1882.

To Mr. A. T. Wikoff:

SIR—With the return of this voucher I wish to inform the department that by careful treatment I have so far recovered as to be able to take care of myself, and feeling thankful to the government for the timely aid afforded me; and, believing that I no longer need any further aid from the government, you will please drop my name from the pension roll.

Please accept my thanks, and believe me ever a loyal citizen of our glorious Union.

Assassination of R. D. Lane.

The particulars of the murder of R. D. Lane, Marshal of Augusta are thus given by the Bracken Chronicle:

About half-past seven o'clock Tuesday evening, Ivan W. Bowman shot and killed R. D. Lane, city marshal, with a shot-gun, the charge entering the left breast, producing almost instant death. The particulars, as near as can be gleaned, are about as follows:

It is generally supposed that the cause of the killing grew out of enmity on the part of Bowman against Lane who beat him for the marshalship at the August election two years ago. No quarrel or dispute had taken place and the parties were on speaking terms. On the evening of the murder Lane and Bowman were talking together, but as no harsh or boisterous language was used, it is safe to say the conversation was as friendly as those on former occasions.

About the time mentioned above, Bowman was seen walking the streets with a gun, and in reply to a question said, "I'm going to kill a few rabbits." Another gentleman asked, "going to kill 'em to-night," and received as an answer, "you bet." But during this time he was evidently hunting Lane. Lane was sitting on a chair at Berwanger's corner and Bowman came down Front street and upon seeing his victim surrounded by a crowd, among whom were W. V. Weldon and J. C. Diltz. Bowman said, "get out of the way Willie," and Diltz made an effort to disarm him but was shoved away, and before Lane could rise to his feet Bowman fired, the charge taking effect as above stated. The gun was double barreled, and was the property of Moses Smith, barber, and it was borrowed under the pretense that he was going rabbit hunting.

Mr. Lane leaves a wife and two children and a host of admirers to mourn his sad and tragic end. He was a member of the Oddfellows, and will be buried under their auspices this morning, (Thursday) at 10 o'clock. His death has caused a vacancy which will be hard to fill, having been city marshal, and a good one, for four years, and at the time of his death was a candidate for re-election.

The shock on the public was so great as to generally paralyze and benumb the sensibilities of all, and the excited people could be seen in groups on the streets and a throng surrounded the dead body of Lane. The assassin was permitted to walk down street after the shooting, unmolested, and it was only after a partial recovery was had that the question of arrest was discussed. Finally the constable, Frank Thomas, was sent for who made the arrest, and at 2 o'clock started to Brooksville and lodged in jail to await trial.

We know of no event that has caused so much feeling in this community. The coroner's inquest is to be held this morning, Wednesday, as we go to press.

Our older citizens will remember I. W. Bowman of years ago, and note a most radical change in the man. His adverse circumstances has so embittered him of late, that it induced him, no doubt, to commit this rash act. Years ago such a thing would have been wholly foreign to the man. He was a big souled, big hearted fellow, and popular enough to receive almost any favor he would have asked of the public; but alas, the contract now brought about by adverse circumstances and imbibing too freely the curse-dealing beverage.

At Any Sacrifice

Messrs. Vicroy & Lee propose to close out their stock of ready made clothing at any sacrifice it is necessary to make. They expect to lose a good deal of money in the next thirty days, and are prepared to do it in order to close out the stock, to make room for the fall purchases. Call and see them and be convinced that they mean to give you for one dollar as much as any other house in the city will give you for two.

A California Cloud-Burst.

A dispatch from Bakerfield, Cal., gives the following further particulars of a great cloud-burst at Tejon canyon. "A water-spout broke in Tejon canyon, yesterday, which occasioned great destruction, as far as the effect is known. This locality is the valley of Tejon Creek, which discharges into the southwestern part of the Tulare valley, on the lands of General Beale, at a point about thirty miles from this place. At the lower part of the canyon a settlement remains of the Indians of the tribe which once claimed the principal part of Kern and Los Angeles counties, living there by sufferance and under the protection of General Beale. They had good huts, farms, vineyards and gardens, and were living in plenty and comfort. Above them the canyon is occupied by white settlers, who have good, well-improved farms. About 4 p. m., yesterday, a wall of water, apparently twenty feet high, was seen sweeping down upon the Indian settlement with irresistible force. Immediately there was a scene of the wildest confusion. Mothers and fathers snatched up their little ones and endeavored to escape to the high grounds. Those not fortunate enough to do so were either swept away or saved themselves by clinging to the branches of trees. The rush of water soon subsided, and when it did so everything they had was either swept away or ruined. The news of the calamity was brought today by an Indian. He could not give a very intelligible account. When he left only two dead bodies had been found, which had been carried a long distance. If more perished it can not be known until an investigation is held. Fourteen persons are known to be badly injured, having been struck by the drift brought down on the crest of the flood. He came to bring the news to a white man in whom they have great confidence, and are accustomed to apply to for advice and assistance in emergencies. They returned together. Nothing is known of what occurred further up the canyon.

New Styles in Table Furniture.

American cut glass is now said to be the best in the world, and it is largely used in dinner service for fruit, ice-cream, and olive dishes. Low flat designs are preferred as they do not obstruct the view across the table.

Finger bowls and plates are illuminated Bohemian glass, the green, pale amber or crimson surface being quite thickly covered with traceries in vivid hues, to which is sometimes added splashes of gold.

In a dinner set, each dozen of plates is of a different kind of china, with a different design on each plate of a set. The renowned manufactures of Copeland, Minton, Royal Worcester, Berlin, Wedgewood, etc., of course take the lead. Fish plates are as often painted with sea weed and shells as they are with fishes. Game plates have almost every known variety of the feathered tribe upon them—desert plates with fruit, flowers, or a beautiful woman's head upon them; portraits of French Queens occurring oftener than any others, especially that of the ill-fated Marie Antoinette. Some magnificent sets in New York "had a stone colored center like an old wall, over which crimson bouvardias seem to clamber." Another had a gold plate with azure center, against which painted daisies rested.

Martin Avery, the "the living skeleton," died last week in New York of dyspepsia. It was the only disease that he could die of. Consumption could not waste him away, there was no room for decay, and gout would not go near him.

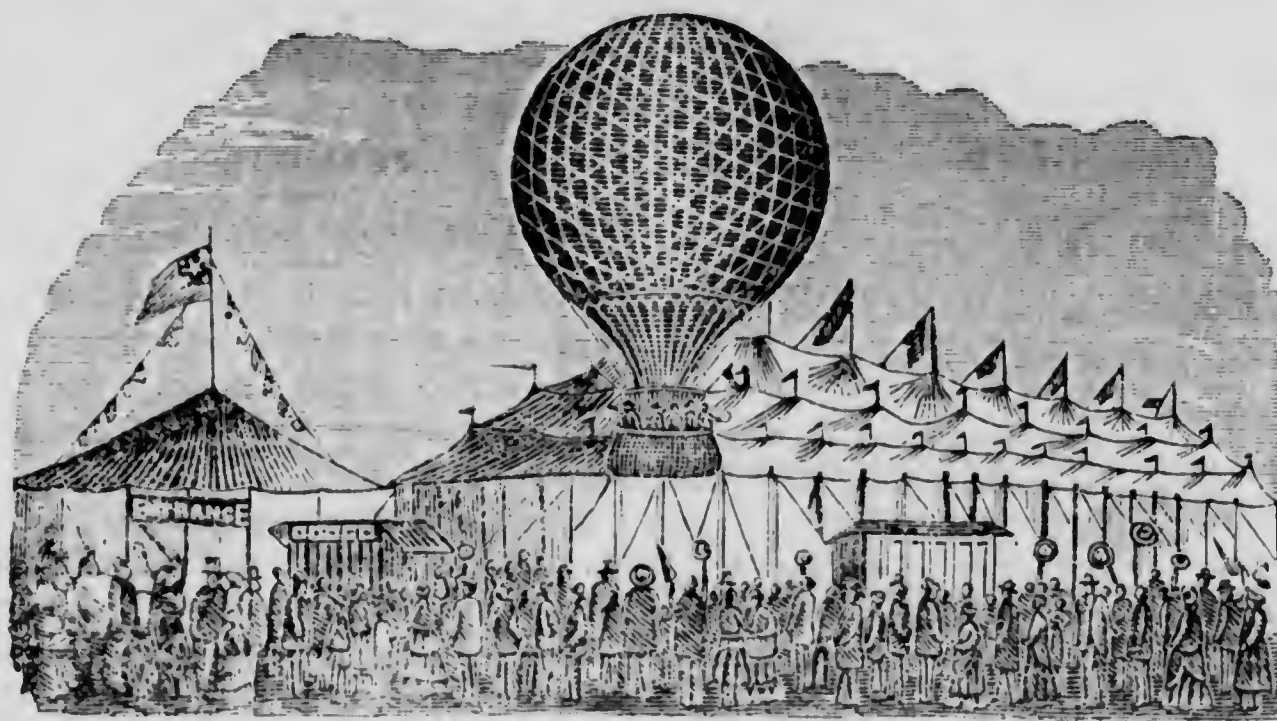

The London Court Journal calls on the Salvation Army to go out and convert Moody and Sankey.

J. HIGGINS, in the Popular Science Monthly, writes that experiment has shown that animals confined in a close apartment where they must inhale over and over again their own exhalations, develop tubercle of the lungs, and that human beings are no less injured by breathing the air of poorly ventilated rooms, he thinks is proved by the fact that of eleven preachers who died during eight years in the county of Philadelphia, eight died of consumption.

Said the chemist: "I used to be very fond of candy till I went to work and analyzed it and found out what horrid stuff is used to make it. Now I can't eat it with any sort of relish. I made a confounded fool of myself, I did."—Poston Post.
